

Plots, Power & Politics

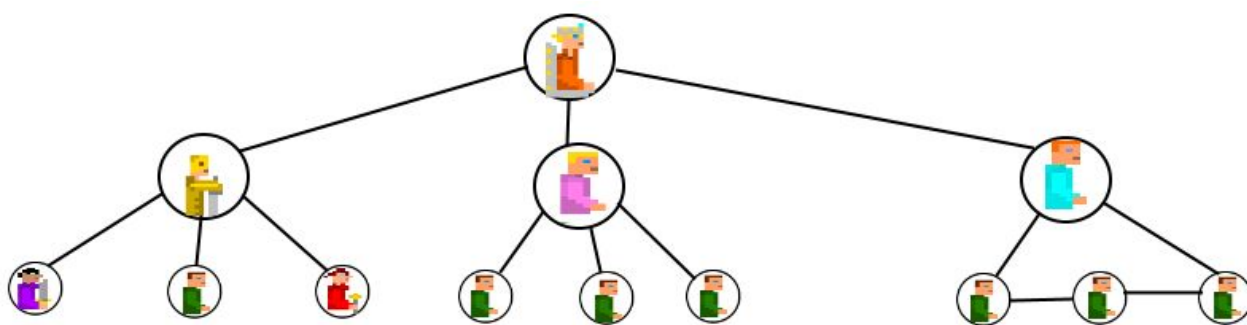

2) Example Web:

The system of Plots, Politics and Power (3P) will be explained using the below example Web Of Lies(More on that latter).

The examples will follow the Character of Lord Violette, in the fictional kingdom of Alvonio.

The current King of Alvonio, King Midas, is a fair and kind ruler, however this very rarely saves leaders of medieval kingdoms.

He has three primary subordinates, Baron Pinkshirt, ruler of the Alvonian Armed Forces, Baron Cyanshirt, ruler of the Alvonian Merchant's Guild (a position that requires an election to fill), and most importantly, Baron Colbat, who is Lord Violette's Superior. Baron Colbat is also the superior of Lord Rouge, Lord Violette's upstart rival. There are also 7 nameless, copy and pasted greenshirt minor lords, each responsible for some generic group of medieval workers or army.

	King Midas King Midas is the ruler of the entire Alvonian Kingdom at the start.
	Baron Colbat Baron Colbat is the head of the Alvonian castle owner group. There are rumours he killed his predecessor.
	Lord Rouge Lord Rouge is a new upstart to the scene, and has goals to become a Baron of his own.
	Lord Violette Lord Violette has recently taken over his father's position as a lord of Alvonio, but wishes to be king

3) The Web Of Lies

The core system of 3P is 'the web of lies'. This is a representation of a society the players will work within, and the important figure heads and hierarchy of power that exist within it.